

Greenday Environmental – Servicing the Professionals 'Peace of Mind'- Professional Support for PPM Drain Services

If you're a Consulting Professional or, in Architecture Engineering and Construction, we support you in solving your client's drain problems. Greenday Environmental works closely with Professional firms to supply a range of drain maintenance solutions since 1995. Like most Professionals, you'll probably want our 'peace of mind' service. That's where our unique 'Planned Preventive Maintenance' (PPM) service provides you and your clients with real value.

For you and your firm, we provide the reports and feedback that keep you 'in the loop' and ensure that your firm is always kept up-to-date with technical reports delivered within 48 hours. This enhances and sustains your professional reputation with your clients.

For your clients, we conduct PPM services on schedule and we update your client 'Drain Files' on every visit. Over time, we can increase the value of your services to clients and improve performance.

This gives you a nice feeling - just knowing that we're actively working on your behalf to prevent your client's drain problems before they cause problems. We know the high costs of down-time on your client's production line, or having to close off a section of your client's plant or office if drain or odour problems occur. So, we understand how expensive it can be for your clients if they have to close a catering facility or, if they fail an EPA audit, or lose their WWDL license.

That's why we work with your firm to ensure that, as far as possible, these problems are minimized. But if they do occur, we're on top of them, and they're not as disruptive or as costly as they can be.

Better still, we want to help your firm to help your clients drive down the annual cost of drain maintenance. And, we can provide you with a regular PPM program, with all the supporting documentation and advice that simplifies your service to your clients.

Here's how it works.

Peace of Mind - 'Planned Preventive Maintenance' (PPM) for your Clients :

The first thing we do is to understand your business needs and you client requirements. We'll discuss what's really critical to your client business and what needs to happen to keep them fully operational - their production lines flowing, or their processes working smoothly, etc. As we say, 'your drains are the veins of your buildings' and Greenday's job is to keep them flowing. So, we learn from you what this means: – no blockage / non-leakage, or continuous flow, or air-tightness, etc. We get to know your client's key success factors so that we can support your firm to provide quality service to your clients and you.
